GEORGE FLOYD UPDATE

The legal teams representing three of the four former Minneapolis police officers charged in George Floyd's death filed a series of motions this week seeking to have the cases dismissed, accusing prosecutors of leaking information about plea deal negotiations to the press.

The trial against Derek Chauvin, who was seen in moments captured on video pressing his knee to Floyd's neck, is set to begin on March 8. He is charged with second-degree murder and second-degree manslaughter.

The three other former officers involved -- Tou Thao, J. Alexander Kueng and Thomas Lane -- are charged with aiding and abetting second-degree murder and aiding and abetting second-degree manslaughter and are currently scheduled to stand trial on Aug. 23.

AHMAUD ARBERY UPDATE

Almost a Year Ago, Ahmaud Arbery Was Killed While Out on a Run. Let's #FinishTheRun

On February 23, 2020, Ahmaud Arbery was shot and killed while out running in Brunswick, Georgia. Because Arbery was never able to finish that run, his family wants the running community, locally and globally, to help him finish it a year after his slaying.

Arbery's family, along with the 2:23 Foundation—a nonprofit formed in Arbery's memory, committed to fighting systemic injustices—will host a virtual run called #FinishtheRun. Participants can run, walk, or ride 2.23 miles any time from February 23 to March 3, to keep Arbery's memory alive. Additionally, participants should share their runs on social media using the hashtags #FinishTheRun and #223fdn.

Race registration costs $23. Proceeds will go directly to a 2:23 Foundation scholarship fund that provides young men and women the opportunity to become future lawyers, local leaders, policymakers, social engineers, and other social justice-based career paths. You can sign up for the event here.

Transgender sprinters finish 1st, 2nd at Connecticut girls indoor track championships

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Andraya Yearwood hears the comments, usually from adults and usually not to her face.

She shouldn't be running, they say, not against girls.

Yearwood, a 17-year-old junior at Cromwell High School, is one of two transgender high school sprinters in Connecticut, transitioning to female.

She recently finished second in the 55-meter dash at the state open indoor track championships. The winner, Terry Miller of Bloomfield High, is also transgender and set a girls state indoor record of 6.95 seconds. Yearwood finished in 7.01 seconds and the third-place competitor, who is not transgender, finished in 7.23 seconds.

Miller and Yearwood also topped the 100-meter state championships last year, and Miller won the 300 this season.

Critics say their gender identity amounts to an unfair advantage, expressing a familiar argument in a complex debate for transgender athletes as they break barriers across sports around the world from high school to the pros.

“I have learned a lot about myself and about other people through this transition. I always try to focus most on all of the positive encouragement that I have received from family, friends and supporters,” Yearwood said. “I use the negativity to fuel myself to run faster.”
