Alec Baldwin Shot and Killed Female Cinematographer, Injured Director on Movie Set

A tragedy occurred on the set of the latest Alec Baldwin movie where the actor reportedly accidentally shot and killed a female cinematographer and injured the director due to a prop gun misfire.

“Alec Baldwin fired a prop gun on a set in New Mexico on Thursday, accidentally killing cinematographer Halyna Hutchins and wounding director Joel Souza,” reported Variety.

The tragic incident reportedly occurred on the Bonanza Creek Ranch set in Santa Fe, New Mexico, where Alec Baldwin was shooting his upcoming Western, Rust. Hutchins, who originally remained unidentified, died after being transported via helicopter to the University of New Mexico Hospital.

Director Joel Souza remains in emergency care after being transported by ambulance to Christus St. Vincent’s hospital.

The Santa Fe County Sheriff’s Office confirmed on Thursday that both Hutchins and Souza “were shot when a prop firearm was discharged by Alec Baldwin, 68, producer and actor.”

Sources told Deadline, which initially reported that the incident occurred when Baldwin reportedly “cocked a gun during a rehearsal, unaware that there were live rounds in it, hitting two people, a man and a woman.” Representatives for Baldwin, a rabid anti-gun demagogue, did not immediately respond to media requests for comment.

China Won't Save Evergrande for Many Good Reasons

Many of the country's debt-laden developers believe they are immortal because Beijing hasn't proven that it's serious about reforms.

With Chinese high-yield issues experiencing their worst selloff in a decade, murmurs are growing that China is poised to blink and relent on its property tightening measures. That hope was shattered on Friday.

At a news briefing, the People's Bank of China broke its silence on China Evergrande Group and said financial risks posed by distressed property developer, which is on the brink of a $300 billion debt restructuring, is "controllable." That is a code word for "no bailouts." The central bank tossed the blame to Evergrande. "In recent years, the company failed to manage its business well and to operate prudently amid changing market conditions," an official said. "Instead it blindly expanded and diversified."

And so, China's real estate developers are poised to enter their harshest winter ever. With over 400 tightening measures this year alone, property sales at major developers slumped by as much as 30% in September. Financing has also become impossible. Is China being too harsh on an industry that makes up 15% of its gross domestic product?

The PBOC can be forgiven for being cold-blooded. This is not the first time China has tried to tame home prices. In the last decade, there have been at least three tightening cycles. However, the country's clever, unruly and resourceful developers always found a way to profit. Even with its steely knives, Beijing couldn't kill the beast.

India tests nuclear-capable missile with range of up to 5,000 km following Beijing's hypersonic rocket trials

India has test-fired a nuclear-capable intercontinental ballistic missile which can reach almost all of China, just weeks after it was reported that Beijing undertook a successful hypersonic missile test this summer.

In a statement on Wednesday evening, India lauded the first test of its Agni-5 missile. The missile was inducted over three years ago, but Wednesday's launch was the first time the rocket had been trialed by the user agency, the Strategic Forces Command.

Agni-5, which is capable of carrying a nuclear payload, can strike targets at ranges up to 5,000 kilometers with a very high degree of accuracy, according to the Indian military, meaning it could reach almost anywhere within China.

Rising Prices, Once Seen as Temporary, Threaten Biden's Agenda

WASHINGTON — At least once a week, a team of President Biden's top advisers meet on Zoom to address the nation's supply chain crisis. They discuss ways to relieve backlogs at America's ports, ramp up semiconductor production for struggling automakers and swell the ranks of America's truck drivers.

The conversations are aimed at one goal: taming accelerating price increases that are hurting the economic recovery, unsettling American consumers and denting Mr. Biden's popularity.

An inflation surge is presenting a fresh challenge for Mr. Biden, who for months insisted that rising prices were a temporary hangover from the pandemic recession and would quickly recede. Instead, the president and his aides are now bracing for high inflation to persist into next year, with Americans continuing to see faster — and sustained — increases in prices for food, gasoline and other consumer goods than at any point this century.

That reality has complicated Mr. Biden's push for sweeping legislation to boost workers, expand access to education and fight poverty and climate change. And it is dragging on the president's approval ratings, which could threaten Democrats' already tenuous hold on Congress in the 2022 midterm elections.

Teen Who Posted Craigslist Ad Trying to Sell Black Classmate as Slave Gets 2 Years' Probation

An Illinois high school student has been sentenced for hate crimes after posting a Craigslist advertisement that offered to sell a Black classmate as a "slave."

DuPage County State's Attorney Robert Berlin announced Wednesday that Judge Anthony Coco had sentenced the male Naperville Central High School student to two years of probation and 100 hours of community service. The student pleaded guilty to two counts of felony hate crime and one count of misdemeanor disorderly conduct on September 1.

The white student snapped a photograph of his classmate on November 14, 2019, and soon posted it as a Craigslist ad using the caption, "Slave for sale (Naperville)" alongside a description that included a racial slur. No other details about the offender's identity were released on Wednesday, although local media reports from the time of the incident indicated that both students were 14-year-old freshmen.

"Hate crimes have no place in a civilized society and will not be tolerated, regardless of the accused's age," Berlin said in a statement. "Studies show that the victims of hate crimes can suffer from depression, increased anxiety, low self-esteem and insecurity among other things. Everyone deserves the right to feel safe and welcome in our communities and my office will continue to charge and prosecute anyone, regardless of age, who engages in this type of behavior."

"It is my sincerest hope that with the help of our Juvenile Probation Department, the juvenile involved in this incident will mature into a productive member of society," he added.
